Friday is Regular Voter Registration Deadline for 2020 Primary Election

February 6, 2020, Monroe, NC – The Union County Board of Elections is reminding residents that the deadline to register to vote in North Carolina in the 2020 primary election is Friday, February 7.

For more information about registering, visit ncsbe.gov/Voters/Registering-to-Vote.

Individuals who miss the regular voter registration deadline may still register and vote at any one-stop early voting site in Union County during the early voting period, February 13-29. To see the early voting sites in Union County, go here: <http://www.co.union.nc.us/news/early-voting-primary-election-begins-february-13>.

At an early voting site, registered voters may update their address, but not their party affiliation. Registered voters who wish to change their party affiliation must do so by February 7.

For more information about same-day registration, visit ncsbe.gov/Voting-Options/One-Stop-Early-Voting.

To confirm your registration status, use the State Board's voter lookup tool.

To register, individuals must meet certain qualifications and complete a North Carolina Voter Registration Application in English or Spanish. Applications are available at the state and county boards of elections, public libraries, public high schools, college admissions offices and many state agencies.

Once completed, the applicant must sign the form, and mail it or return it in person to the Union County Board of Elections. Voters who are already registered may update their information by submitting a voter registration form by email, fax, mail, or in-person to the Union County Board of Elections.

Prospective voters must meet the following qualifications to register to vote:

- Be a U.S. citizen;
